DETAILED ACTION

The request filed on 3/26/02 for a Continued Prosecution Application (CPA) under 37 CFR 1.53(d) based on parent Application No. 09/207130 is acceptable and a CPA has been established. An action on the CPA follows.

Status

Claims 1-15 are pending in this application. Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Binkley, et al (US Patent 5,088,033), in view of Weber (US Patent 5,812, 668).

As per claims 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, 14, 15, Binkley, et al discloses:

providing an emulation module.../providing an emulation object.../an emulation module.../an emulation object...(Col. 3, lines 34-37, Col. 8, lines 62-68).

ensuring that the application will utilize the emulation module.../ensuring that the application will utilize the emulation object.../means for ensuring.../wherein the application is capable of utilizing the emulation module in lieu of the device.../emulating the interaction...(Col. 6, line 66-Col. 7, line 4);

Art Unit: 2163

or a

executing the application on the development system independently.../wherein the application is executed on the system, the emulation module and the application independently.../wherein the application is executed on the development system, the emulation module and the application emulate the interaction...(Col. 1, lines 60-62, Col. 1, line 66-Col. 2, line 1, Col. 2, lines 9-19, Col. 7, lines 32-38, [where the examiner is interpreting the "development system" and the "point of sale system" of the present invention to be analogous to the "host system" and "target system" of Binkley, et al);

ensuring that the application adequately utilizes the emulation object...(Col. 2, lines 9-13);

modifying the application...(Col. 1, lines 11-14, Col. 2, lines 13-19).

allowing a developer to provide input...(Col. 50, lines 41-43);

providing the input to the application in a form expected...(Col. 51, lines 3-17).

Binkley, et al fails to teach the following, however, Weber discloses:

A point of sale system...(Col. 65, lines 54-63,w/ abstract, lines 1-11)

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art for the device to be specialized for the point of sale equipment because the transactions which are being tested on a different computer in Weber (test gateway computer) is occurring in a pos environment. In this case, since transactions are occurring at a pos system, any device used at the pos must therefore be specialized or formatted to operate at the pos system.

As per claims 3, 10, Binkley, et al discloses:

wherein the application is platform independent...(Col. 58, line 46-Col. 59, line 10).

As per claim 5, 12, Binkley, et al discloses:

Art Unit: 2163

wherein the point of sale equipment includes a driver...(Col. 19, line 67-Col. 20, line 6).

As per claim 6, 13, Binkley, et al discloses:

wherein the emulation object emulates the driver and the device...(Col. 19, lines 11-15, Col. 19, line 67-Col. 20, line 6).

As per claims 4, 11, Binkley, et al fails to teach the following, however Weber discloses:

wherein the application is a JAVA application...(Col. 7, lines 15-17). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to make the application and the emulation object platform independent because in a computer environment, applications are constantly being changed around and depending on these changes and the needs of the user, the platforms will also need to change in order to fit the environment. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to make the application and the emulation object JAVA applications because JAVA is a common, distributed programming language that is simple and is used for object-oriented programming in the application development art.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1, 7, 8, 14, 15, 2-3, 5-6, 9-10 and 12-13 have been considered but are most in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Applicant's arguments filed 3/26/02 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

As per claims 4 and 11, the applicant argues that Weber contains no mention of the use of an emulation object for emulating the device of the point of sale system on a development system that is independent of the point of sale system or emulating a device specialized for use with the point of sale system. However, Weber discloses a system where a transaction which can occur at a point of sale system is tested on a system that is not the pos system (on the test gateway computer). In a transaction at a point of sale, it is obvious to use specialized pos devices to carry out the operation since they do occur at a point of sale. The combination of the Binkley, et al reference and Weber reference discloses the emulation object used to enforce this type of operation since Binkley, et al describes this feature in Col. 3, lines 34-37 and Col. 8, lines 62-68.
